

Medicinal Chemistry

It deals with the chemistry of different available drugs. Where it concerns with different methods of synthesis and their different reactions in body (such as, pharmacological effect, side effects and pharmacokinetics).

In addition the practice of medicinal chemistry concerns with qualitative and quantitative determination of impurities or active ingredients concentrations that present in different pharmaceutical forms according to different pharmacopeia.